“Mentoring 101”

May 15, 2012 at 5:30pm – United Way office

Presented by Karen Hinshaw

Human Development Extension Educator

Director, Purdue Extension Huntington County

No significant learning occurs without a significant relationship.

What can you do? Be a mentor.

Opportunities for change and growth are present throughout the life-span. These opportunities can come from informal mechanisms like neighbors, friends, and extended family members or from more "socially constructed" places like the military, churches, schools... and YOU! Be a mentor.

Mentoring creates intentional opportunities for change and growth.

Please join us May 15th 5:30-7pm for “Mentoring 101”.

- What is a mentor? (and is not!)
- Boundaries of Helping Relationships
- They may not think like you and live their lives differently.
- Cultivating intentional skills for mentoring
- Empowering vs enabling
- You will make a difference, even if you don't understand their actions.
- And more!
- The orientation will follow with questions and answers
